Date: March 1, 2021

To: Pastors, priests, deacons, religious brothers and sisters, principals and parish staff

From: Patrick Metts, Associate Director of Family Life & Pastoral Care Ministry, Office of Formation and Discipleship

Re: National Catholic Women's Conference – Online

A National Catholic Women's Conference is being hosted by the Virtual Catholic Conference on March 12-14. At this year's conference, participants will be entering into Christ's words, "My peace I give to you." Women will learn how prayer enhances their vocation as mothers, spouses, professionals and friends.

Archbishop Gregory Hartmayer, OFM Conv., will be giving a welcome talk for all participants from the Archdiocese of Atlanta. During the conference there will be more than 40 speakers giving a wide range of practical and immediately applicable steps for becoming a faith-filled Catholic woman. Registration is free for the conference.

Women will be able to access all the talks throughout the weekend on demand. Participants are also allowed to purchase a premium pass for $50 to enable them to revisit the talks at any time after the weekend and continue to benefit from the amazing speakers.

We encourage all parishes to use the attached bulletin insert and digital graphics to help spread the word about this fantastic opportunity.
